20 places where your website loses leads

Visitors come, but requests are few? Usually it is not the design but small things that go unnoticed one by one. Open your site on a phone and go through the list — each point takes a minute.

20 points sandwor.ru Edition: October 2026

The first screen

- [ ] 1 In 5 seconds it is unclear what you do and for whom
  Show the first screen to a friend for 5 seconds and ask what you do.
- [ ] 2 There is no action button on the first screen
  People who arrive ready should not have to scroll the whole site.
- [ ] 3 The headline is about the company, not the client's result
  "We are a dynamic company" versus "A site in 2 weeks that brings you leads".
- [ ] 4 A heavy slider or video slows down loading
  The first screen should appear within 1–2 seconds even on mobile internet.

Trust

- [ ] 5 No prices — not even "from"
  Without a price guide many leave to ask those who have one.
- [ ] 6 No real work samples
  Case studies with a task and a result convince better than any promise.
- [ ] 7 Reviews are faceless or missing
  A name, a company, a photo or link — and specifics: what it was before and after.

- [ ] 8 It is unclear who is behind the site
  People, an address, company details. An anonymous company gets less trust.

Buttons and forms

- [ ] 9 Several equally bright buttons
  When five buttons are main, none is. Keep one per screen.

- [ ] 10 "Submit" on the button instead of a result
  "Get a quote" or "Book a trial" work better.

- [ ] 11 More than 3–4 fields in the form
  A name and a phone are enough for a first contact. The rest — in conversation.

- [ ] 12 No separate consent to data processing
  Since September 2025 it is a separate checkbox with its own text. Without it the site breaks the law and signals "not a serious site" to an attentive client.

- [ ] 13 Nothing happens after submitting
  Show that the request arrived and what happens next: who will get in touch and when.

- [ ] 14 Requests do not arrive
  Send a test request right now — and check where it ended up.

Phone and speed

- [ ] 15 On a phone buttons are tiny or covered
  Check on a real phone: a pop-up chat, a cookie banner, a "back to top" button.

- [ ] 16 The page loads longer than 3 seconds
  Check in PageSpeed Insights; a slow site loses visitors before the first screen.

- [ ] 17 The phone number is not tappable
  On a phone the number should start a call, and messengers should open a chat.

After the request

- [ ] 18 Replying takes more than an hour in business hours
  After an hour people are already writing to competitors. Set up notifications for new requests.

- [ ] 19 Requests live in email and messengers
  They get lost there. A CRM shows all requests, their status and source.

☐ 20 No analytics goals

Without goals in Metrica you cannot tell which pages and channels bring leads.

Ticked more than five points? Start with forms and speed — that is where leads are lost most often, and they are the easiest to fix.
